behind heart disease and cancer medical error is now listed as one of the leading causes of death of the many medical errors that may lead to injury and death diagnostic failure is regarded as the most significant generally the majority of diagnostic failures are attributed to the clinicians directly involved with the patient and to a lesser extent the system in which they work in turn the majority of errors made by clinicians are due to decision making failures manifested by various departures from rationality of all the medical environments in which patients are seen and diagnosed the emergency department is the most challenging it has been described as a wicked environment where illness and disease may range from minor ailments and complaints to severe life threatening disorders the cognitive autopsy is a novel strategy towards understanding medical error and diagnostic failure in 42 clinical cases with which the author was directly involved or became aware of at the time essentially it describes a cognitive approach towards root cause analysis of medical adverse events or near misses whereas root cause analysis typically focuses on the observable and measurable aspects of adverse events the cognitive autopsy attempts to identify covert cognitive processes that may have contributed to outcomes in this clinical setting no cognitive process is directly observable but must be inferred from the behavior of the individual clinician the book illustrates unequivocally that chief among these cognitive processes are cognitive biases and other flaws in decision making rather than knowledge deficits
